

FIRST TERMINAL EXAMINATION 2076

Grade: XII (Hum.)

Subject: C. English

Time: 3 hrs.

Full Marks: 100

Pass Mark: 40

Candidates are required to give answers in their own words as far as possible:

1. Read the following passage and answer the questions: [5×3=15]
- The development of the Space Shuttle has dramatically reduced the cost of sending loads to space. The Shuttle takes off from Earth like the rocket, and lands again like an aircraft. It can transport not only its own crew, but also passengers and has a large cargo-hold which is capable of carrying large satellites or a space laboratory.
- Before the Space Shuttle was created, it was necessary to plan trips into space several years in advance. However, for the rest of the century it should be possible to make space flights every week or so. Any scientist or engineer needing to travel into orbit will simply take the next shuttle flight, stay as long as necessary, and then return at his or her convenience.
- It is difficult to imagine the immense opportunities created by the shuttle. One of the great advantages of having a reusable space vehicle is that it can take one load after another into orbit. Very large space stations could not be launched in their complete form directly from Earth, but they could be built piece by piece in space. The space shuttle is likely to be used as a general 'workhorse' for the rest of this century, and the building of such station in orbit should become commonplace.
- Once these huge orbiting space stations are completed, they are likely to become the platforms from which hundreds of robot space ships could be launched cheaply and easily to explore the solar system and to start mining operations on the Moon. The technology needed for this is already developed and available. And because of commercial and military pressures to develop space technology, it is likely that governments will be increasingly willing to start extensive programmes of space engineering, exploration and research.
- One future development could be the setting up of completely artificially constructed space colonies. According to a growing number of experts, it is already technically feasible to construct a pioneering space colony, powered by solar energy. This colony would be self-sufficient, and would also allow its inhabitants to conduct further space engineering projects and build more colonies as they were needed. An American scientist, Dr. Gerard O'Neill of Princeton University, has predicted that a space colony capable of supporting 10,000 humans could be set up well within few decades. The materials for such a colony would have to be shipped up from Earth using the space shuttle. According to Dr. O'Neill, further space colonies, which could house perhaps ten million people each, could be constructed during the twenty-first century. These would not be made from earth materials, but would get their raw materials from the Moon.

Questions:

- a. Why couldn't a complete space station be launched directly from the earth?
- b. What is its main use likely to be over the next 2 decades?
- c. What is the difference between a space station and a space colony, and what will each be used for?
